

KENTUCKY WHISKY POOL

MOVEMENT TO LIMIT PRODUCTION
The Distillers' Pool—The Meeting That
Is to Be Held In Louisville
on the Twelfth of December.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 3.—A meeting of the distillers of Kentucky is called to convene at the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington on Wednesday, December 12 for the purpose of organizing a pool to control the production of whisky throughout the State. The necessity for such an organization had been keenly felt since the enormous over-productions of the seasons of 1881 and 1882. About 32,000,000 gallons of whisky were produced in Kentucky in each of those years, and the result was that the market was overstocked and the distilleries were compelled to suspend operations. During the season of 1883, which embraced the months from the fall of 1889 to the spring of 1893, only 6,000,000 gallons were produced in Kentucky. There is a steady increasing demand all over the country for Kentucky whiskey, but this demand does not exceed over 12,000,000 gallons per year. The object of the distillers of this State now is to form a pool and not produce any more whiskey than the actual demand for it requires. At a meeting of the State Distillers' Association some time ago this idea was discussed.

was denounced, and the matter was referred to a committee to solicit the signatures of those distillers all over the State who favored the formation of a pool. This committee has been hard at work, and it has succeeded in getting the signatures of distillers representing in the aggregate about sixty per cent of the producing capacity of all the distilleries in the State.

All of the largest distillers have signified their willingness to enter the pool, and it is only the small producers who have staid out. When the committee was appointed to obtain the signatures it was generally understood that if sixty per cent of the producing capacity could be obtained the pool would be formed, and now that the requisite per cent has been obtained the meeting for the 12th of December has been called.

If a pool is formed, and there is every indication that it will be, the plan of producing 12,000,000 gallons of whisky per season will apply to every year in the future, or until the demand becomes so much greater that a larger production is neces-vary. By the forming of a pool distilleries will be sealed according to the capacity, and in this sealing the smaller distilleries will be favored to a greater extent than the larger ones, for if the small distillers were not allowed to run their establishments to almost their full capacity they could barely make a living.

STEAMBOAT STATISTICS.

Annual Report of the Supervising Inspector.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—James A. Dumont, Supervising Inspector General of Steamboats, in his annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1883, shows that the net decrease in receipts for the year amounted to $35,700. The total number of accidents during the year resulting in loss of life was thirty-four; total number of lives lost by accident from various causes, 281. As compared with the previous year, while the number of accidents to steamers was less, the loss of life was greater.

The increase in 1883 being seventy-nine. The whole number of passengers carried on steam vessels during the year is estimated at 475,000,000, of which number about one person out of each 1,750,000 lost their lives from various causes incidental to travel by water.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 3.—The Evening Journal, with the energy it displayed immediately after the great fire of 1871, promises to appear as usual this afternoon, having established new quarters in Arcade Court, with an old font of type formerly used in printing the first edition of the ness in printing tax lists which had been stored in a vault. Its six cylinder Hoe press can be repaired for good service. John B. Jeffry declares that notwithstanding his loss, he is prepared, through the co-operation of other printing houses, to complete all contracts made, as if nothing had happened, and will continue business very shortly at the old stand. His slight

Carriage Building in Cincinnati.
CINCINNATI, Dec. 3.—The Cincinnati Board of Trade report shows carriage building to have increased more than any other branch of business. Seven years ago

Only about one million dollars were invested in the business, now there there are over eight million. In 1882 $9,000,800 worth of carriages and wagons were manufactured in this city. The number of vehicles made here in one year was over 100,000, or an average of thirty-three per hour. Placed end to end, with horses attached,

The Reformed Episcopalians.
CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—It was just ten years ago Sunday since the Reformed Episcopal Church was organized, and in commemoration of this fact there was special services Monday in all the churches of the denomination.

Shunday in all the churches of the deunion-ination. The chief celebration was at Christ Church, in which the rector, now Bishop Chey, sowed the first seed of the dissensions by a very slight verbal omission in the service, which gave what proved to be schismatic offence to Bishop Lighthouse.

Mysterious Attempt at Murder.
LA SALLE, Ill., Dec. 3.—An attempt to assassinate John P. Tilden, aged seventy-two, an extensive fruit raiser and land owner of Peru, was made last night. He was called to the door of his residence, when a man hidden behind the lattice discharged at him a gun loaded with buckshot, shattering his left arm, which was amputated. The assassin is supposed to be a neighbor, but no arrests have yet been made.

AN enumeration of the voters of Indiana, just completed shows an increase in six years of 41,684 whites 987 colored, an annual increase of 710. The total number of voters is 483,643 whites and 10,007 colored, making the grand total 493,650.

ARCHBISHOP CROKE thinks the Irish party in Parliament has made some progress, and if the people persevere in a just cause, avoid crime and refuse to be transported, the present generation may live to see the old land clothed in freedom under the Irish flag.

REPORTS from from twenty counties in Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky indicate that there has been a largely increased acreage of wheat sown. Farmers are satisfied with the prices of produce and are paying their bills more promptly than in other years.

EX-SENATOR SPENCER will assert that he never saw Dorsey pay money to Braly, and never saw those two men together. He claims that the Star Route trials were brought about at his instigation and says he waited two weeks in Washington to testify, but Bliss refused to see him.

A DISPATCH from Washington says: Mrs. Mary A. Miller, of New Orleans has applied for a license as master of a steamboat. The Supervising Inspector of the district reports her competent, but debar her because of sex. The case is referred to the Solicitor of the Treasury.

JUDGE KINKADE, of Fayette county, after a careful study of the State revenue system, is convinced that no great improvement can be effected while the taxable valuation of property is adjusted annually by the assessors. He suggests a commission for each county who shall determine the cash value of all lands once in five years, and the said value to be the basis for taxation. It is very certain that assessments in many cases ought to be increased and the rate of taxation reduced all around. Under the present system the bulk of the taxes are paid by men of moderate means. The man who owns a cottage worth $1,000 pays all that he ought to pay in taxes, because its value is known to all, while for obvious reasons the citizen who is worth $200,000 doesn't pay, in many cases, one-tenth of what he ought to pay. A fair valuation of property and low taxes is what is needed.

DAME FASHION'S GRAB-BAG.

Little Things that All the Satchel and Multitudinous Feminine Minds.

"London smoke" is a fashionable color for cloth ulsters.

The style of a neat waist worn half a century ago is now copied and admired by ultra-fashionable young ladies. The waist is sharply pointed front and back, and over the front is laid a shirred piece from the throat to the extreme point, where it ends in a bow and ends of satin ribbon. The sleeves are puffed and shirred and are exceedingly high on the shoulder.

A charming Parisian bonnet, received in New York straight from Madame Heitz Boyer, is made of golden fawn-colored velvet. The brim is veiled by a full of ostrich tips shading from the palest to the deepest brown. Over one side of the crown droop two more of the feathers and underneath these are set a cluster of pink azaleas and frosted leaves of gold and bronze. A sparkling buckle holds the feathers in place. The bonnet is further brightened by a lining of pink velvet.

A recent notion is the "crazy" quilt—and crazy it is. A lady in Baltimore said the other day that the first day she tried to put her together it gave her such a headache she had to go to bed. They are made of scraps of silk, satin or velvet. These are fastened on a foundation of canvas—the more "crazy" the better. The edges are neatly turned in and button-holed or feather-stitched with different colored silks or worsteds. When finished they are really quite pretty. Enough silk twist to work a cushion can be had for forty cents by buying what is called waste silk. The same quantity in skeins would cost over a dollar.

KALEIDOSCOPICS.

Society dramatized affords an immense scope for tragedy and comedy combined. The world's audience is loud in its acclaim, and exclaim how true to life.

Many women resemble the ivy. They marry, thinking man will be the grand oak to cling to through the storms of life, but very soon finding to be only a weed, which rather tenderly bends and snaps at the first twining tendrils of the would-be clinging ivy.

Women nowadays display quite a masculine taste for hunting, the only difference that the women squire to higher game, they prefer husband hunting to fox hunting. Yet women who are such adepts in strategy ought to be able to capture the wily fox with equal dexterity.

Shawls are a modern invention, yet in these days of advanced enlightenment it behooves one to keep their well sharpened sufficiently to be able to penetrate the cunning shams which are constantly palm'd off so cleverly on poor unsuspecting humanity. "All that glitters is not gold."

He is observing her most attentively, as she sits enthralled most industriously, one to keep their well sharpened sufficiently to be able to penetrate the cunning shams which are constantly palm'd off so cleverly on poor unsuspecting humanity. "All that glitters is not gold."

Pelagic eaters are a sure index of this cultured age, where ever you go you encounter some of these excessive eaters—win possess very relative amount of intelligence, but they are all alike in their insatiable appetite for food, but the spirit of pride causes them to impart it to others whether of appreciative mind or no.

There would be less repining among fashionable young ladies from the prevalent complaint of ennui. The only remedy for a morose existence, is to arouse yourself to action, to have some aim in life to live for, to accept it in whatever form it might present itself—grasping it with the avidity you would a life-saver, thus preventing you from sinking into despair.

Fashion is a cruel despot, yet her victims quietly submit to her dictates with heroic bravery. Ladies' tight sleeves, which reign supreme, are the refinement of cruelty—compressing the circulation of the blood to a painful degree—and the once fair hand becomes as rudely as a raw beefsteak, causing the veins to swell and the pink nails to turn purple. This style is no beauty to hands I assure you.

Why is the question so often propounded—in a little town which we wot of—that all of a sudden the young men are flitting westward. We can not opine, unless it be, there has been so many town weddings of late, that in accepting the invitations which had been accompanied by a handsome present, it has proven quite a strain on their bank account, as a last resort they are compelled to leave their native haunts and seek fortune in the far west.

The world is surely overstocked with humanity, when you hear the constant cry of suffering humanity in search of employment, continually reduced in their efforts to procure employment, by the curt, incisive information "Why, man, the applications are greater than the demand." This deplorable state of affairs makes one come to the conclusion that suicide is necessary, to decrease the overstocked population—that substance may be obtained by the lingering appeal.

Young ladies who will persist in being extremists in fashion, have to suffer the consequences. For instance, Miss Jones is engaged, an exceedingly vain woman; she flatters herself that she resembles a heron in form—her sleeves fit her arm as if in a vice, showing off to the best advantage the symmetry of an exquisitely muscular arm. Where is woman's vanity? but she is patient under the trials of affliction. She is obliged to decline, in the presence of her sweetheart, her hostess' invitation to lay off her bonnet, because, she would be necessitated to divert herself of her bodice as she would have the freedom to raise her arms to remove her bonnet. Who would not wear tight sleeves? Such model of beauty and convenience!

Our boys have put away ball and bat and have organized themselves into a society of the Simonds, and you can hear the pop of the sticks in all directions. They generally go out with a full shot-bag and empty game bag and come back nearly the same way, only both are empty.

Pearl and crystal brandebourgs and fourages fastens and decorate many evenings corsages of white or pale tinted satin or silk.

The constant feeling of being "played out" and "used up," can readily be removed by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
